

SAFARI NJEMA NEWS FLASH

Dear Hunting friends and clients.

First time client Mr David Reynolds booked a lion hunt at the Raleigh Show in February this year and what a great safari it turned out to be. David hunted this magnificent lion on the 2nd day of his trip but it was a challenge to get him out as the other males would not move off and one even tried to charge us. Eventually we called for the Land Cruiser and only then did they retreat. A nerve wracking experience, not for the faint hearted! I'm sure you'll agree that David made a wonderful one-shot kill on this magnificent beast.

Any small cat is always a challenging species to hunt, one of them being the Caracal. These cats can be hunted at night by means of calling at night or by a pack of hounds that will pick up the scent in the morning and then run on it. Dave shot his early in the evening when we spotted one in an old field. This by it self is a wonderful big cat and a special trophy.
